Speech & Debate

About the program

Speech and Debate is an extracurricular activity that involves competitive public speaking and debate.

Speech and Debate is an extracurricular activity that involves competitive public speaking and debate. Participants typically engage in a variety of events, such as persuasive speaking, extemporaneous speaking, and impromptu speaking, as well as various forms of debate, including policy debate, Lincoln-Douglas debate, and public forum debate. The primary goal of Speech and Debate is to help students develop their communication and critical thinking skills. Through competition, students learn how to effectively present and defend their ideas, as well as how to analyze and respond to the arguments of others. In addition to developing communication and critical thinking skills, Speech and Debate can also provide students with a range of other benefits. For example, participating in Speech and Debate can help students build their confidence, develop their research skills, and become more knowledgeable about current events and social issues. Speech and Debate can also be a fun and rewarding experience. Students have the opportunity to meet and compete against peers from other schools and regions, and they can develop lasting friendships and connections through their participation. Overall, Speech and Debate is an activity that provides students with a range of valuable skills and experiences that can be useful in many areas of life.
